Crossroads International offers volunteer placements as part of the Volunteer Cooperation Program (VCP) financed by Global Affairs Canada. Overseas volunteers support long-term partnerships between Crossroads, partner organizations in the South and partners in Canada. Criteria for selection are defined on a placement-by-placement basis to meet the expressed needs of the local partner organizations with whom we work. Placements are varied in their focus, from developing information and communications capabilities to supporting the growth of fair trade cooperatives. The OceanPath Fellowship provides community-focused experiential learning opportunities for graduating students to become active and effective change-makers, bringing new ideas and working closely with communities to foster sustainable and positive social change in Canada and around the world. The year-long Fellowship is designed for students who have:

demonstrated the capacity and potential to develop as effective change-agents;

a meaningful connection with a community of their choosing, locally, nationally or internationally; and

EITHER an innovative idea of how this community could be strengthened or developed OR a connection with a positive and sustainable community development initiative in any field already underway within this community that they would like to build upon.

Candidates do not need to develop a completed plan at application stage, but rather have an interesting and innovative idea of something that could strengthen the community that can then be further developed in the first few months of the program, informed by the on-campus and distance learning components.

Upon selection to the program, Fellows are provided with up to $25,000 to contribute to:

a living allowance (including housing, food, local transport and insurance);

travel and travel-related expenses, to cover airfares to and from home locations and the community (if required), and, for those traveling internationally, such things as visas, immunisations and health insurance; and initiative funding, to cover expenses such as start-up and operational costs.

Operation Wallacea

Website: http://www.opwall.com

Operation Wallacea (Opwall) is a conservation research organisation that is funded by, and relies on, teams of student volunteers who join expeditions for the opportunity to work on real-world research programs alongside academic researchers.

The expeditions produce a large number of publications in peer-reviewed journals each year - over 300 so far - almost all of which had data collected by teams of volunteers. It has also led to the discovery of 37 new species that have been formally described.

An Operation Wallacea expedition allows you the chance to participate in active field research. By working with a range of academic teams and scientists you are afforded the opportunity to enhance your career potential, to see if field work is something you wish to pursue and to try something completely different, all while being part of a legacy-leaving project.

You can also join an expedition to collect data for your own dissertation project, using this towards your degree or in some cases masters theses or even to allow you the opportunity to work in a particular field or study area.

We currently run intensive research programs in the lowland forest in Sulawesi, Indonesia, cloud forest in Honduras, the Peruvian Amazon, savannah in South Africa, the mountain Transylvania, the temperate forests of Croatia and the dry forests of Madagascar, as well as reef-based research projects in Indonesia, Honduras, Croatia and Mexico. In 2018 we also introduced Tanzania & Malawi (Great Rift Valley) to our list of research sites.
