

Two independent reviewers systematically searched relevant websites including government, organizational and non-profit websites for grey literature pertaining to clinical guidance (e.g, guidelines, standards,etc.) for early intervention in psychosis or first episode of psychosis. Additional sources included expert recommendations and relevant peer-reviewed documents. The publication period was 2000 to June 2022, languages were English and French-Canadian. Documents included all Canadian and international publications, including country-level documents and larger regions or bodies serving larger regions (eg. IEPA). Provincial-/state-level documents were considered for countries that did not have national level guidance documents. The final group of documents was decided upon by consensus.
