COURSE DESCRIPTION
This course is a survey of central issues in epistemology and offers a comprehensive overview of both classical and present-day topics in analytic epistemology. It is divided into five substantive units (not including the introductory material covered in the first week):

Unit 1. Plato, Quine, and Rorty
Unit 2. Scepticism, Closure, and Transmission
Unit 3. The Semantics of ‘Knowledge’-Attributions
Unit 4. Evidence and Justification
Unit 5. The Analysis of Knowledge

Typically, we will spend 2-3 weeks on any given unit. We will begin with a general introduction to epistemology as a philosophical discipline and consider, in Unit 1, classical writings by Plato (Theaetetus) and more modern approaches by Quine and Rorty. In Unit 2 we discuss sceptical arguments and paradoxes (Do you know that you are reading these lines, given that you might be merely dreaming?). After examining the role of closure and transmission principles in sceptical arguments we then turn our attention, in Unit 3, to recent epistemological issues concerning the semantics of ‘knowledge’-attributions. In this unit we will discuss the view that the predicate ‘knows p’ changes its content with the ascriber’s context (epistemic contextualism) and the view that knowledge is sensitive to the subject’s context (subject-sensitive invariantism). Unit 4 is then concerned with induction and the notions of evidence and justification (and the relationship between the two), while Unit 5 is devoted to the analysis of knowledge and Gettier’s famous counterexamples to the view that knowledge is justified true belief.

Unit 1 will be taught by Dr Magal and topics from the remaining units by Prof. Blome-Tillmann.

REQUIREMENTS
Students who take this course must complete readings on time and must participate in class. Students are expected to have their texts with them at each class, and students may be called upon at random to discuss or explain parts of the week’s readings. The course presupposes knowledge of propositional and first order predicate logic (Prerequisite: Introduction to Deductive Logic 1). Knowledge of probability theory is desirable but not necessary.

FORMAT
There will be two lectures per week, although as much time as possible will be devoted to discussion. Normally, the first class of each week will involve a presentation of the relevant literature and the second will consist of a mixture of lecturing and discussions. Students are required to prepare short presentations for their tutorial groups (see below).

ASSESSMENT
Attendance and Participation: 10%
Midterm Exam: 30%
Final Essay: 60%.

Additionally, each student must prepare a short presentation together with a group of fellow students. Failure to participate in a group presentation will result in the deduction of 6% from the final course grade.

Students are asked to read Jim Pryor’s excellent guidelines on how to read and write philosophy: http://www.jimpryor.net/teaching/guidelines/writing.html and http://www.jimpryor.net/teaching/guidelines/reading.html

EXTENSIONS
Late papers will be downgraded at a rate of 1/3 of a grade per day (e.g. from A- to B+, C to C-), including weekend days/holidays. Evidence of a consistent lack of preparation (including non-attendance without a medical excuse) results in a deduction of up to 5% from the final course grade. Requests for extensions will be considered (but not automatically granted) only when requested at least 24 hours before the paper is due and substantiated at the time of request by a doctor’s note documenting illness. Extensions will not be more than seven days.
