11. Rationale for new course
    From time to time the School receives visitors, or hires new faculty or a faculty member develops a new interest. A special topics course allows these topics to be taught in a flexible manner. This course will therefore facilitate offering topics that feature recent research results to our undergraduate students and beginning graduate students. Currently our only slot courses are at the 700 level making them inaccessible to undergraduates without special permission. It is our expectation that if a topic proves to be of enduring interest it will be proposed as a regular course.
